Women's Tea Well Attended In Dhahran

"Tea for Two" and a few hundred more was held Oct. 21 by the Dhahran Women's Group ushering in the fall season. Bachelorettes and housewives dressed in fashionable fall garb gathered from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Starlite Room, which was festively decorated for the occasion in an autumnal motif of yellow carnations flown in especially and donated by KLM.

A "World Wide Treasures" theme was carried out by displays on a dozen tables, including china, silver, crystal, porcelain jewelry, antiques and other trinkets from Europe, the Middle and the Far East.

Unusual little gnomes marching across Mrs. F.G. Teel's display of chinaware resembled Walt Disney's lovable dwarfs, amid the blue cornflowers of Mrs. T. F. Garrity's bone china. The egg-shell translucence of Mrs. J.R. Bukala's Bel-leek Ware contrasted with the bold portraits of Napoleon and Josephine on Mrs. M. D. Carter's tea set. Ironwood Madagascar figures formed the background of antiques displayed by Mrs. C. Cypher. The luster of the old Roman Tear bottles excavated in Lebanon belied the fact that they had lain buried for 2,000 years.

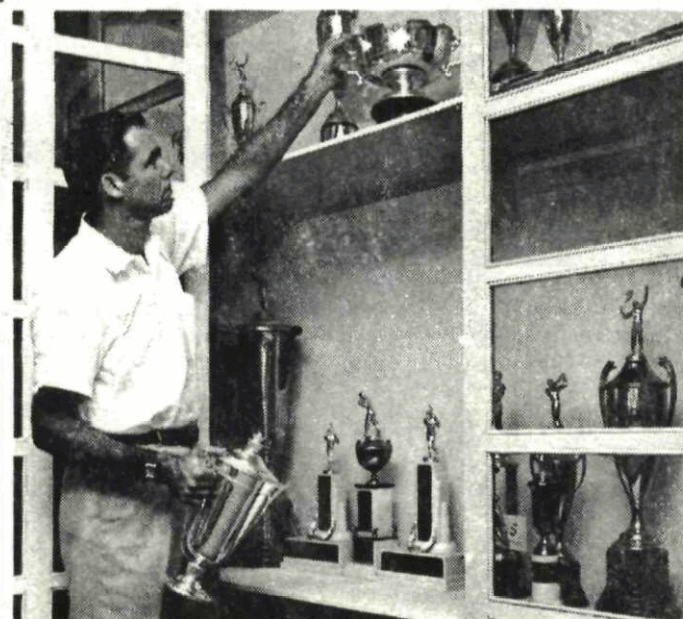

Outstanding were the antique snuff bottles displayed by Mrs. F.W. Ohliger. Ten exquisitely fashioned bottles, all differently colored, reposed in a box about a foot square. An amber one with were driven to the Fire Station on pumper trucks, amid clanging bells and sirens. They were greeted by volunteer firemen dressed in asbestos fire defense suits. The round plastic helmet and heavy white suits of the guards led many of the children to ask if they were "space men."

The tour included demonstration of a dry chemical extinguisher and manning of a hose line. One of the firemen explained the various methods of putting out fires. All the children were permitted to participate in a demonstration of fighting an interior blaze, lining up behind the firemen and holding the hose which spurted water.

The young visitors received a book and a badge from "Sparky, the Firedog," and enrolled as members in Sparky's Fire Department. This organization is composed of millions of children in every country where Fire Spectacular play by the mixed doubles winners, Dr. J. W. Taylor and Mrs. Lois Taylor, combined with runner-up finishes in the men's and women's singles, brought Aramco the championship of the Persian Gulf Oil Industries Lawn Tennis Association for the third time in the past four years and gave the winning team permanent possession of the Saba Habachy Trophy.

Communications Center Opens In Dammam

H. H. 'Abd al-'Aziz ibn Sa'ud ibn Jiluwi officially opened a new Saudi Arabian Government Communications Center in Dammam Oct. 17. During the opening ceremonies, he talked by direct telephone to Arabian Minister of Communications, H. R.H. Amir Sultan ibn 'Abd al-'Aziz in Riyadh.

The new Center in Dammam is only a part of a recently completed Saudi Arabian Communications System, one of the largest radio-telephone stations in the Middle East, with headquarters in Jiddah and Centers in Riyadh, Medina, and Dammam.

Built by the Siemens Company of Germany, under the direction of Ibrahim al-Jaffali and Bros., at an estimated cost of SR 20,000,000, the Communications System gives Saudi Arabia direct telephone and teletype connections throughout Arabia and likewise links Saudi Arabia with the foreign capitals of the world.

The new Communications System is equipped to handle "in the future" telephone calls from Dammam to points anywhere in the world.

In the final last Friday on the courts of the Basrah (Iraq) Petroleum Company, the Taylors crushed Don Truelove and Miss Jean Sangster of Qatar Petroleum Company, 6-1, 6-3, with a remarkable burst of offensive tennis. The victory produced the two points that clinched the championship for Aramco with a total of four points.

Other points were scored by Mrs. Muriel Bish, who succumbed in the women's singles final to the fine all-around play of Mrs. W. Thom of Kuwait Oil Company, 8-6, 6-1, and by W. V. Tietjen, 6-2, 6-1 victim of Tapline's Joe Jabbour in the men's singles final.

The defending champion Iraq Petroleum Company, which captured the men's and women's doubles, also scored four points. However, by Association rules the team title went to Aramco because it had the greater number (3) of finalists. K. O.C. was third with 3 points, Tapline fourth with 2 and B.P.C. and Q.P.C. tied for fifth with one point each.

In their march to the title the Taylors edged a strong B.P.C. combination of R. Smail and Miss Mildred Fawbert, 6-4, 7-5, and then routed J. Marsh

Shoppers' GuideWatch Repairman in Al Khobar

By MARY ROWAN

A skilled watch repairman has been added to the staff of a local jewelry shop, to become the first such craftsman in business in Al Khobar. Al-Kauser's Indian Store in Ras Tanura is the only other location which can boast the services of a similar repairman.

Niaz Muhammad, of Karachi, Pakistan, recently arrived at the Broadway Jeweler's off the town's main street. Mr. Muhammad spent 15 years as a repairman at the London Watch Company of India and Pakistan and is well qualified for all types of watch repair. He will repair and clean either men's or women's watches and will set jewels within the watches or mount gems to decorate women's timepieces. The average price for a thorough cleaning of a watch is SR 10. Other prices vary, depending on the difficulty of the repair job.

A good supply of spare parts for Omega, Lusina and Zodiac watches is now in the shop. When the owner returns next month from a buying trip to Switzerland, a complete stock of spare parts for all major brands of watches will be stocked.

Finger rings for small children are being manufactured in the Eastern Jewelers Shop on the main street. Prices on the tiny gold circlets with precious stones range from SR 40 to SR 60. New Sterling silver pepper and salt shakers are at the same store for SR 48.

At 'Ali Zain's Jewelry Store, a new selection of charms is on hand for Christmas giving. From Germany, the charms include tiny 18-carat gold reproductions of camels, elephants, Taj Mahals and other motifs at reasonable prices.

Embroidered Linens

At the al-Hedjaz store on the main street a new collection of closely embroidered Italian and French made linens come in all colors and are decorated with either floral patterns or scrolls of brightly colored embroidery threads. The price is SR 14 per yard of 15-inch-wide material.

Also at the store is a new selection of French made rayon taffeta with striped patterns outlined in gold or silver thread. This sells for SR 10 per yard of 36-inch-wide material. Embroidery threads by Clark of England are available in 20 color-fast shades at SR 3 a dozen. Eyelet edging from Austria for trimming lingerie or blouses is in stock at SR 1.50 per yard.

Household Wares

The New Arabian Store this week has a Mirroware pitcher in gold finished metal with a special ice lip concealed inside; SR 20. Matching Mirroware curved tumblers are in many bright colors at SR 26 for a set of eight. A circular gold-finished Mirroware tray is SR 15.

The Green Flag expects a large new shipment of "Osterizers" by Oster of Wisconsin. These handsome blending appliances will now be available with bases in three different colors, including cream, red and pink, in addition to the ordinary copper and chrome. Prices on the blenders will average SR 195.75 each.

Kooheji's Store has silver finished sherbet dishes from Holland at SR 6 each for the tall stemmed variety and SR 4 each for the short stemmed type.

Johnson outboard motors have now appeared at Abdul Rehman al-Gosaibi's on the corner near the Persian Gulf. The motors are available in several different sizes, and should present a challenge to the many boating sportsmen on local waters.

A new selection of Rosenthal china tea sets has arrived at al-Kauser's gift shop. This shipment features fanciful water colored designs in modern patterns on white china backgrounds. One of the outstanding tea sets is displayed in the store window. Stark geometrical shapes make the unusual tea pot and sugar and creamer a definitely modern trio, enhanced by a delicate tracery of silver and black leaves. Also in the new Rosenthal shipment at al-Kauser's are pairs of etched crystal snifters which are gift-boxed and priced at SR 32 per pair.

Friends Honor J.R. Tallmadge On Retirement

RAS TANURA - James Roy Tallmadge, Garage Shift Foreman, will retire Nov. 1 after 37 years of work in the oil industry. A group of close friends honored Tallmadge on his birthday and retirement with a party Oct. 14 in the Guest House.

Tallmadge was born Oct. 14, 1896, at Star, Mich., and attended high school in Grand Rapids, Mich. During World War I he served two years with the Army Engineers in France.

Hearing about the oil boom in Texas, in 1919 he went to Burkburnett where he worked as a mechanic helper, mechanic and pipefitter, and welder on oil field and refinery construction.

Tallmadge received his first foreman's job with Magnolia Pipeline Company. He followed construction work as journeyman foreman and inspector for many years with contractors and oil companies throughout the mid-continent field, making his headquarters at Tulsa, Okla.

In 1936, Tallmadge moved to Los Angeles, where he worked as a teacher of Industrial Education in the Los Angeles High School District.

He went to Bahrain in 1944 for Bechtel McCone and Parsons on the construction of Babco's Catalytic Cracking Unit. After completion in 1945 he returned to the States for a year then came to Ras Tanura for Bechtel International Builders. Two years later he returned to the field as an Aramco employee. He has been employed in the Garage as Shift Foreman up to his retirement.

When asked about his hobbies, Tallmadge replied: "I have always been a bookworm and naturally lean to literature as a hobby, although I like to spend available leisure hours in hunting and fishing in fresh water lakes and streams."

Upon his retirement, Tallmadge and his wife plan to spend two and one-half months vacationing in Europe. Their first stop will be Istanbul. They will spend a week in Athens, then proceed to Vienna where they will meet friends and travel through Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, Spain, Germany, and Holland, finishing their tour in England for Christmas and New Year, after which they will make their residence in California.

Critic Applauds Dramaramco For 'The Skin of Our Teeth'

For its latest presentation Dramaramco attempted Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize winning play, "The Skin of Our Teeth." The performances given Saturday and Sunday nights, in the Senior Staff Theater, while not completely satisfying in every detail, caught the tragic-farcical spirit of the jet propelled whirl through the calamities and calumnies of man's history to give the audience an enjoyable evening.

The selection of such a technically difficult play as this by a non-professional group is in itself comparable to Slippery Rock Teachers scheduling a football game with Oklahoma University (which is not to necessarily confuse Okla. U. with professionalism). But to follow it through with the success achieved by the Dramaramco performers is a tribute both to their hard work and their talents.

As a piece of dramatic literature, "The Skin of Our Teeth," at first glance, appears to be a hodge podge of serious drama, subtle comedy, and in general a playwright gone mad. On closer examination, however, an audience will discover moments of profound reflection challenging the most ardent thinker: in the last act, for instance, the exchange between the father, arguing for idealism, and the son, demanding the right of might, presents a forceful intellectual debate. But whenever an impending climax appears to be approaching too much seriousness, Wilder, a master craftsman, introduces farcically interruptive devices to break the tension and leave the audience to ponder on what might have been.

This, of course, is the primary function of a writer--to introduce ideas by presenting their conflicting elements and then leave the conclusion up to the varying ruminations of individual minds. And the method of doing this is left to the originality of the author, and referred to in somewhat nebulous fashion as "writing style." The effectiveness of Wilder's "style" is likewise left then to the individual to determine, depending upon the satisfaction afforded by the end result.

Well directed by Pat Kelly, the Dramaramco presentation laid Wilder's ideas graphically before the audience. While hampered by back stage problems that rendered the technical end somewhat less accomplished than the demands of Wilder's script, the cast was able to overcome such difficulties as inadequate stage facilities and last minute personnel changes to make "The Skin of Our Teeth" a worthwhile and successful venture.

In the huge cast, Dan Nelson and Eleanor Limbruner performed admirably as Mr. and Mrs. Antrobus, the symbol of harassed parents through the ages. Pat Kelly in the major role of Sabina, the eternal temptress, and sometimes maid, was properly coquettish, indignant and waspish, as the situation demanded. Margot Hall, a youngster making her initial stage appearance, was excellent as the Antrobus' daughter. Charles MacFarlane handled the difficult part of the son who grows up to become "the terror of the world."

Smaller roles were effectively dramatized by Alice Bahrenburg as a gypsy fortune teller, Joe Salvo, quadrupling as a dinosaur, a concessionaire, head usher and Spinoza; Bill Curtis as one of the 'happiest' sclerotic livered conveners in the history of the American Legion; and the supporting cast, generally, many of whom performed in several roles.

Spence Deverill and his stage crew merit special praise for accomplishing as much as they did in the way of flying flats, disappearing walls, super vicaried flowers and wandering vertebrates of various descriptions.

yellow dragon, a carved agate, cloisonne figured, and a lapis lazuli blue carved in bas-relief -- all were masterpieces of an ancient carver's art.

From a balinese temple, two winged red lions adorned Mrs. G. P. U. de Stoppelaar's table. Grapes of semiprecious stones from Hong Kong formed the centerpiece of fruits displayed by Mrs. J. F. Curry. An intriguing metal soap box (large enough to hold a big bar) was displayed by Mrs. J. R. Heising. A lovable German character doll, complete with cigar, was included in the doll group displayed by Mrs. D. K. Buterbaugh. It would be fascinating to wear a pair of the Mother of Pearl ancient stilt shoes in Mrs. D. E. Richards' collection. It took seven men 30 days to embroider the 54-inch cover from Lahore, West Pakistan, covering Mrs. Richards table.

If the occasion hadn't been a tea, it would have been interesting to have coffee ground in the Antique Syrian coffee grinder displayed by Mrs. Owen. Rich in elegance was Mrs. Cypher's study in black and white in her table setting, white China on a black cloth.

Contributing greatly to the success of the affair were the donations by Middle East Airlines of a 90-piece Middle East Djazz Flatware set and posters, 200 yellow carnations by KLM, and travel booklets and posters by American Express and TWA.

Mrs. E.M. Ross, President of the Women's Group, wishes to compliment her able committee in charge of the affair, headed up by Mrs. Teel and assisted by Mesdames J. R. Heising, A. C. MacKenzie, J. F. Haseltine, D. E. Richards, C. W. Sprouse, P. J. Nance, R. M. Patterson, T. F. Garrity, and C. Cypher.

Ladies invited to pour included Mesdames H. W. McQuiston, R. W. Engels, Miss Mary McConkey and Miss Phyllis La Fata, all of Dhahran; Mrs. L. H. Bacon and Mrs. C. E. Carver, both of Dhahran Air Field; and Mrs. G. P. U. de Stoppelaar and Mrs. C. W. Heysham of KLM.

Mrs. C. Carter McMullen . . . An Aramco Housewife

Friendly and gracious, Loma McMullen, wife of C. C. McMullen of Dhahran, is happy in her role of devoted homemaker. One of Aramco's most charming mothers, she was in one of the first contingents of company wives to arrive in Saudi Arabia, and this year marks her tenth anniversary here.

"I met the man I married one day when I took the wrong ferryboat across San Francisco Bay. That was nearly a quarter of a century ago and I have been traveling with him ever since!" the congenial housewife said.

She followed her ambitious husband half-way around the world to Ras Tanura in 1946 on her first trip to foreign shores. "My daughter Sharon, then 9, and son Terry, then 3, sailed with me from New York in September, 1946, on the S.S. Vulcania bound for Alexandria. We stopped at Naples and spent two days exploring the ruins of Pompeii and took time out to sail over to Capri."

Their voyage was an exciting adventure, although travel conditions were very crowded right after the war. "I remember all the mothers -- there were five of us and ten children -- were huddled into the ship's lounge which was converted into sleeping quarters. When the children scampered in and out it was like a miniature hotel. The other passengers were confused -- they didn't know which children belonged to whom!"

Differences in language and customs of people in foreign countries have always held fascination for Loma. She enjoyed every knot of the voyage, and when the ship docked at Alexandria after nearly three weeks at sea, she and her children entrained for Cairo where they boarded a chartered plane for Dhahran. "All told the trip took 21 days. Since then we've circled the globe twice, including a trip on the President Jefferson through the Pacific."

Loma has a flair for interior decorating and prefers bright colors. An unusual decorator's touch has been achieved at her home with the glass doors which open to the porch and patio, by attaching delicate oriental paper, like gossamer with real butterfly wings. She is now engaged in the ambitious project of making new drapes for her living room.

Her latest sewing creations include a stunning wardrobe her college age daughter toted to Stanford this fall.

Searching for material in foreign countries led into a fascinating sideline of collecting buttons to go with the material. She confesses at times she has found interesting buttons, then searched for material to match! In her wanderings she has acquired several types of buttons, including coconut shell from Hawaii and carved miniature wooden heads from Nairobi. She gathered many pearl buttons from an old button maker on Bahrain Island. Her assortment of patterns is also extensive and during an hour of random chat, no less than two neighbors dropped by to borrow a particular pattern.

Loma is an avid collector of antique jewelry and possesses many exotic pieces from foreign shores. Foremost examples include a gold necklace from Turkey, lacelike in its pristine beauty, and a unique pair of half-inch long earrings, covered with brilliant rose-cut diamonds. She likes to wear dangle bracelets and often wears some made of elephant hair from Africa. A clever method of using her husband's fishing tackle box, the clear lucite kind with small compartments, has been devised by Loma. She places a pair of earrings in each compartment, where they are kept clean and visible and free from mix-ups.

Other hobbies of this versatile lady include reading travel books about places she would like to visit (she hopes to go to South America someday), and she also enjoys biographies. She reads all the current magazines to keep up on world events and what other people are doing. Her yen for music varies from opera to Boogie. "My favorite pieces are Schubert's Serenade and, in a modern vein, 'Begin the Beguine,'" Loma confided. She thinks swimming is fun and her husband shares her enthusiasm for these.

In her leisure hours Loma finds time to help others. She has been especially active in youth activities and youth recreation. Her home has been the scene of many popcornfests, weiner roasts, and pizza-pie bakes. Her natural ability for organizing these affairs has made them all booming successes. She has also served as Den Mother for the Cub Scouts and was at one time Girl Scout Adviser.

She is an ardent crossword puzzle fan and a Scrabble enthusiast. Said one friend after a thorough trouncing in a friendly scrabble tournament, "She outwits me at every word!"

Despite her multitudinous activities, Loma remains calm. In the hospitable atmosphere of her living room, where she graciously served coffee, it was a simple matter to relax and converse in an unhurried fashion. She is an understanding person who is able to put a person at ease during the first five minutes. Her only pet peeves are mice and diets.

She engages in a few 'green thumb' activities with houseplants and has a thriving philodendron and sword shaped sansevieria to reward her efforts.

A connoisseur of good food, she disclosed a sheaf of favorite recipes gathered from all over the world. —N.S.

Aramco Wins Tennis Title

and Miss F. Tovey of K.O.C., 6-1, 6-3.

The switch of Taylor, last year's singles winner but also an outstanding doubles player, to mixed doubles had proved an effective bit of strategy that probably brought Aramco the team title. Players may compete in only one event.

Mrs. Bish opened with a 6-2, 8-6 triumph over Mrs. Mike Bassoul of Tapline, then defeated Mrs. M. L. Aspinall, 6-4, 6-2, both in Thursday's double round. Tietjen topped the B.P.C. entrant, C. Clare, 6-3, 6-1, and then eliminated I.P.C.'s M. Barro, 6-0, 6-4.

Aramco players also made strong showings in the other two events. In men's doubles Howard Sutherland and Jack Grehan crushed the Tapline pair, Mike Bassoul and M. Sarkissian, 6-2, 6-4, before losing the semi-final match to the ultimate winners, Frank Jeune and Dennis Sladen of I.P.C., in three bitterly contested sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. In women's doubles Mrs. Lue Mestrezat and Mrs. Anna Marie deHeer extended Mrs. John Evans and Mrs. Priscilla Grant of K.O.C., before losing, 6-2, 6-4, in the semi-finals. The Aramco team had drawn a first-round bye.

Jeune, last year's doubles winner with Henri Haddad, played almost as effectively with the deceptive Sladen and took the two-hour final match against the host team's F. M. Rahmatullah and B. Bedrossian, 5-7, 6-4, 9-7.

The women's doubles title was won by the I.P.C. pair Mrs. J. Marshall and Mrs. R. Cochran, who triumphed in another two-hour final struggle, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

WOMAN AT WORK

MISS LOUISE LINK

Kazi

Miss Louise Link, Secretary to the Ras Tanura District Manager, has been in the Aramco world for three and one-half years, and the fact that she is now completing her second contract indicates that the time has been satisfying. Upon completion of her high school work in her home town of Peekskill, N.Y. Louise attended the Berkeley Business School in New York for advance work in commercial studies.

Upon completion of her business training, Louise accepted a position with the Waugh Equipment Company in New York. She was secretary to the vice president in charge of engineering and sales for six years. Then, a wandering bug bit her, and she has since been chasing about the globe in contented acquiescence to the travel mania.

Louise has toured throughout Europe, and the climax of her traveling was a jaunt that included Stuttgart and Mannheim, Germany, where she met relatives of both her father and mother for the first time.

Keenly interested in sports, Louise has plenty to do in her spare time. And while she hasn't had especially good luck in setting up an ice skating pond to satisfy her favored athletic endeavors, she has spent many pleasurable hours swimming, water skiing and bowling.

Safaniyah Pipeline Construction

supports. These supports are built by driving piling, capping, and installing ring girders for the pipe.

At the Safaniyah end of the project, construction is likewise moving toward completion on the off-shore flow lines. Plans call for 12 miles of a 16-inch trunk-line through the center of the producing area and 10 miles of 6-inch gathering lines from the individual producing wells. Work has been completed on 47 per cent of the gathering lines.

Laying of the trunk and tributary lines in the Gulf has been effected from a huge barge where the pipe is welded together in a continuous line and lowered to the Gulf bottom in a manner similar to the laying of ocean cable. Prior to the welding on the barge each pipe joint undergoes thorough preparation. It is cleaned, primed, and coated with a liquid asphalt and then wrapped with an asphalt impregnated paper in addition to a glass fiber wrap to prevent corrosion from salt water. A final process in preparation of the pipe is to wrap it with wire mesh and coat it with concrete.

The initial work on the pipe is a shore operation. When the welding is completed on the barge, each weld is X-rayed to determine the condition of the weld before the pipe is lowered into the water by means of a boom at the end of the barge.

The entire project is under the supervision of the Construction department, Dhahran Division. Cost for the complete operation has been budgeted at approximately 20 million dollars.
